

as you were

Pictured at left is Muhammad Ali (a.k.a. Cassius Clay). The World Heavyweight Boxing Champion spoke before a capacity crowd on March 13, 1968 in the Student Center Auditorium. His visit was sponsored, in part, by the Afro-American Society, which also brought to campus the late Cleveland Mayor Carl B. Stokes, the first African American to lead a major U.S. city; Dick Gregory, the legendary comedian and civil rights activist; and The Main Ingredient, which was a popular R&B band of the 1970s. (See page 33.)