In April 1995, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, the first woman to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court, spoke at Canisius College as part of the Raichle Lecture on Law in American Society Series. Justice O'Connor is pictured above with Canisius President Rev. Vincent M. Cooke, S.J., at a reception hosted by the college, in her honor.

Justice O'Connor announced in July that she would retire from the U.S. Supreme Court following nearly 25 years on the bench.
