The Canisius College Department of Economics & Finance, housed in the AACSB accredited Richard J. Wehle School of Business, is seeking applicants for a tenure track opening at the Assistant or Associate Professor levels beginning August 2016. Applicants must possess or soon expect to receive a Ph.D. in Finance. Applicants with specializations in all areas of Finance will be considered.

The position requires effective teaching and mentoring at the undergraduate and MBA levels. A team of undergraduate and MBA Canisius students won the 2015 Global CFA Institute Research Challenge. Applicants should exhibit potential for publication of scholarly research. The standard teaching load is 3 courses per semester. The compensation package is competitive for AACSB accredited institutions.

Canisius College is located in Buffalo, New York and serves approximately 4,000 undergraduate and graduate students. The Economics & Finance department is comprised of 11 faculty members and serves more than 260 undergraduate majors as well as an MBA concentration in Finance.

Department representatives will be interviewing candidates at the ASSA conference in San Francisco in January 2016.
